Present Laughter By Sir Noël Coward

The plot follows a few days in the life of successful and self-obsessed actor Garry Essendine as he prepares to travel for a touring commitment. Amid a series of events bordering on farce, Garry must deal with interruptions from women who want to seduce him, placate his long-suffering secretary Monica Reed, avoid his estranged wife Liz, be confronted by a crazed young playwright, and overcome his fear of his own approaching fortieth birthday and suggested impending mid-life crisis.
